

After her encounter with the king, Theadora gets very ill. Rabbi Gershom sees his opportunity to help his people and goes to his Roman friend to ask him to go with him to the king and offer his services to the Princess. With HaShem's help he cures her.

After gaining his trust with the Gershom, the king asks him to build a marvelous throne out of silver. Gershom agrees on the condition he won't be blamed if his workers will steal silver. However Johan watches closely and notices the workers taking silver for themselves as they work.

Johan decides if he can prove that the weight of the throne is less than initially, than he can get back at the Jewish people. He demands Michael to ask Mileta to steal the secret on how to measure the throne from her husband.

Johan comes to the king and accuses Rabbi Gershom for taking more silver than needed. Using the method retrieved from Mileta, he proves his suspicions.

The king angrily sends Gershom to the dungeon where he remained until they thought of a worthy punishment for him.

Gershom is sent to the hunger tower where Devorah finds him, rescues him and they run away.
